

GOSPEL REFLECTION

Today's readings focus on both prayer and persistence. For those who do not understand prayer or reject the need for it, persistence seems almost a contradiction. You've asked God for something once, the argument goes, so why would you have to ask again? Or, what if I ask God for something and he says no? This misses the true need for prayer, and its work upon us. The most reassuring part of asking is not what is given, but that God embraces us in our need. When your soul cries for God and desires Him in prayer we will find rest in Him. Prayer is how the soul is healed and made new.

"Hide all your ugliness in my heart. It's a hospital, you know, and doesn't one sometimes come out of the hospital cured? Trust in me with all your heart since I am your great friend. My hope never comes to an end, and I never cease to watch over you. I am infinite and I am love. So, lose yourself in me, trusting me to guide you. Be the little blind child who skips joyously because he is holding someone's hand. Oh, learn to be joyous since you are Mine and open your heart to the fullness of peace." – Jesus to Gabrielle Bossis

INSTALLATION MASS AND RECEPTION
